Woodhull High Registration Surpasses That of Last Year

Unusual large registration necessitates changes in room assignments — Total Enrollment is 149 — Rules formulated in the music department for coming sessions.

Registration on the opening day of school showed a total increase of approximately 25 per cent over last year's enrollment, bringing the number up to 149 students. The largest percentage of increase was noted in the primary department, where there are 16 students enrolled in the first grade, 15 enrolled in the second and 9 in the third. The registration figures by departments are as follows: Primary, 40; intermediate, 33; junior high, 29; senior high, 47.

The unusually large enrollment in grades one and two will necessitate a change in the organization of the program of the music department. In previous years it has been possible to handle both these grades in one group. Now, however, it will be necessary to teach each grade separately in order to give each student the amount of individual instruction which is necessary on these levels.

The additional time which will have to be spent with the primary grades, and the application of a greater number of students for instrumental lessons will make necessary the selection of the latter students. At the present time, more have applied than can possibly be accommodated. In fairness to the whole group, students who have asked for lessons on more than one instrument will be asked to select the one instrument which they prefer. Instruction will be given for a probationary period of four weeks, at the end of which time a selection will be made of as many students as can be taught in the time remaining for that work. The selection will be made on the basis of the ability of the students to benefit from the instruction provided.

The cooperation of the parents is asked this year in filling out the practice slips which the school provides. These slips, which provide spaces for the name of the student, the number of hours practiced, the parent's signature, should be turned in to Miss White every Monday morning. Although some variation is allowed, every student of an instrument will be expected to practice at least six hours each week. Because of the disturbance to the rest of the school, students will not be permitted to practice in the building except for special occasions.

All instruments which are rented to the students are rented with the understanding that the fees will be paid each month and that the instrument is to be kept in good condition. Liability for breakage and damage rests with the student. In case any student definitely decides to drop the study of an instrument, he should turn in the instrument immediately in order to avoid further rental charges.

LADIES AID DINNER

The Ladies Aid Society of the Methodist Church will serve a dinner in the Hopper Memorial Hall on Friday, September 10. All are invited to attend.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Miles are parents of a son born Tuesday, September 7.

SUFFERS FRACTURE

The Rev. Jacob Mitchell, residing on Osceola R. D. 1, suffered a fracture of the leg, Tuesday forenoon, when kicked by a horse. He was removed to Corning Hospital in the Kenyon Ambulance.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Quick and sons of Washington, D. C., visited relatives here the first of the week.

Cooperative Bargaining Agency Formed by Addison Dairymen

Producers bringing fluid milk to Renken Dairy plan organization to cooperate with other like groups in determining prices before shipment — Leon Andrews heads milkmen — Smaller associations protected in voting.

Milk producers bringing milk to the Renken Dairy in this village will organize into the Addison Milk Producers Cooperative Association, according to action taken at a meeting held in the Grange Hall Monday night. There were 65 of the 200 men who draw milk to the station and many others present at the meeting. Owing to the sentiment expressed at the meeting it is believed that a large group of the men bringing milk to the station will become members. However, it was voted to have at least 150 members before forming a definite cooperative.

Organizer Dickinson, Virgil, a representative of the Metropolitan Bargaining Agency, which is composed of the 74 groups bringing milk to the metropolitan area, addressed the group. Francis Kane was elected chairman and Ralph Decker was elected secretary for this meeting.

Officers

A board of directors composed of Leon Andrews, A. B. Ackerson, William Widger, Griff Morris, C. E. Kahler, James Worden, Ellery Burns, Park Boyd and Francis Kane will control the destinies of the local group, formulate plans for incorporation and present by-laws and governing rules for future meetings of the group. The board then elected Leon Andrews president and Francis Kane secretary for future meetings.

Outline of Plan

Mr. Dickinson in outlining the setup of 74 like organizations throughout the territory serving New York markets told of the Rogers-Allen Bill giving the farmers the right to get together to set the price of milk in the New York milk market and in order for them to set this price they would have to organize into a cooperative bargaining agency.

There are now 74 of these agencies set up for the New York milk shed with others being formed in other communities so that it is expected there will be over 100 such groups to send milk to New York.

These bargaining agencies for the producers will meet with bargaining agencies for the distributors in New York and between them set a price agreeable to the farmer and likewise a price fair to the distributor. Already the producers cooperatives claim to have increased the price of milk to the farmer.

Under the new setup the farmer will thus know the price he is to receive the first of each month before shipment and not wait until long after the milk has been distributed before receiving his check to find what price he is receiving as at the present time.

Small Groups Protected

To forestall the voting by the larger cooperatives who might outvote the smaller groups there is a provision that each marketing association in the bargaining agency has one vote for each 100 members. Then a second vote must be taken to change the laws and rules so that each association has but one vote regardless of the size of the cooperative membership. On important questions both votes must have 75 per cent of the total votes to be passed and it is necessary for 51 per cent of the marketing associations to be present to vote. It is believed that with this method of voting the smaller groups will be protected.

Other meetings will be announced locally in the near future by the Board of Directors.

Retiring Addison Lawyer Gives Fine Picture to School

Delmar M. Darrin, widely known Addison lawyer, has presented Addison High School a fine picture of the commission in the contested

Hayes-Tilden election. The picture shows the large group of principals and spectators gathered in the auditorium where American history was made in the decision which elevated Hayes to the presidency settling the closest election ever run in this country. Accompanying the large framed picture is a key which explains it and lists the commissioners taking part as well as the newspaper representatives who attended the momentous occasion.

Mr. Darrin, long referee in bankruptcy having several counties in this section under his jurisdiction, has always been ready to do his part in local public affairs. He has for many years been a trustee of the Addison Public Library and has served his community with a civic mind while practicing his profession.

Due to his advanced age Mr. Darrin has decided to retire from active practice of law and sell his large library. About the first of October he will vacate the office he has occupied for more than forty years over the Sackett & Taber store. Whatever practice he feels able to retain Mr. Darrin will do at his spacious home on Park Place.

The picture he has just presented to Addison High School is a rare photograph which he desired the school to own because of its historical value. It will be hung in the history room of the school where this and future generations of students will have the opportunity of gazing upon it.

Lacey Conducts Services in County Blds.

The Rev. Garland G. Lacey of the Methodist Episcopal Church spoke at the County Jail and County Home in Bath Sunday afternoon at services conducted for the people there. This is one in a series of such services conducted by ministers of Steuben County. Addison ministers will conduct services during the month of September.

The service in the jail was conducted first. This consisted of a sermon on "The struggle for life as expressed in many forms of endeavor. This struggle for life is the main part of religion". Hymns sung by the 35 gathered there were chosen by the inmates.

In the home those present were in chairs, wheel chairs and on crutches. The theme of the sermon here was "The Tonic of the Cheering Word". Here likewise the hymns were chosen by the inmates who joined heartily in each number.

Those accompanying the Rev. Lacey to Bath were: Miss Betty Pepper, Douglas Hand, Arthur Kirk, Meadville and Wilbur Bulkley.

Miss Dorothy Morgan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Morgan and Gerald Olin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sterle Olin, both of this place, were married Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Baptist parsonage in Homer. The Rev. Fountain performed the ceremony.

The bride was attractively gowned in silk of burgundy hue with brown accessories.

Inhalator Tests To Begin Soon

Instructions for those who will operate the inhalator purchased through the efforts of local ladies, will begin immediately on arrival of the apparatus from the manufacturer. One has been ordered and should be in readiness this week. It is expected that the telephone office, which is open 24 hours a day, will be the storage place for the machine. It is believed that this will be the most likely place for it to insure its being in readiness at all hours of the day and night. The firemen, doctors and others interested will be given instructions in operating the machine so that there will be several available.

Addison High School Opens With Increased Enrollment

School opened in Addison this week with an initial enrollment of 511 pupils according to the first tabulation made by principal Irving R. Gladstone. This number will be materially increased before the end of the month, if previous year records can be depended upon as a safe prophet for all students who expect to attend are never on hand the first day of school.

The enrollment is divided nearly half and half between grade pupils and academic students, there being 261 of the former and 250 of the latter. This year's freshman class is thought to be the largest in history of the school 81 frosh being registered on the first day. Last year the junior class held mass honors with an enrollment of just over 60, but there is many a slip between the last two years of school so this year's senior class numbered 52 on opening day. There were 58 sophmores registered, 47 juniors and 12 post graduates.

The 261 counted in first registeration of the grades were as follows: first, 31 pupils; second, 26; third,25 fourth, 33; fifth, 28; sixth, 45; seventh, 37; and eighth, 36.

The total enrollment shows a net gain of ten students over the initial report for 1936. Last year the enrollment at school opening was 501, divided 254 in the academic departments to 247 in the grades.

Tuesday Mishap Injures Three—Wrecks Cars

Two hub caps locked together early Tuesday morning on the Woodhull road and as a result three people went to a hospital, three others are nursing minor bruises and cuts and two cars are wrecked.

Maurice Robbins, 21, was driving his car east on the Woodhull-Addison road at 1:30 Tuesday morning while returning home from a dance. With him were Marion Dann, Donald Hadlock and George Hopper. Mr. Robbins states that near the Sherwood farm a motor car approached with only one headlight and he was unable to tell which light it was. In addition both drivers state there was dense fog.

The oncoming car was driven by Richard Paul, 16, Galeton. Ruth Hurlburt, 16, of Gaines, Pa., was a passenger in the car and was the most severely injured, sustained a fractured skull and cuts about the face and head. Her condition was regarded as critical for some time. Ernest Paul, 18, also of Galeton was in the Paul car and was seriously injured about the head. Genevieve Meade also of Galeton was a passenger also. The car was a 1928 Chevrolet sedan. Passengers in the Robbins car received minor cuts and bruises.

Neither driver assumed responsibility for the mishap. After locking hub caps the Paul car was catapulted into the ditch and turned completely over with the whole left side battered. The Robbins car continued on 50 feet beyond the accident and struck an embankment. Its left front end was stove in and the left rear side was twisted. Neither car could be driven.

Both cars were towed to Addison. An ambulance was called and the injured taken to Corning Hospital where they were attended by Dr. Stuart Bean. Chief Bovee is investigating.

Carrie B. Calkins No. 1 Hit Production in Top of Oriskany

Newest producer makes more than 25 million feet of gas when only inches in the sand—Larkin well low on structure to be finished soon — Hattie Hand near axis of field has drilling trouble—Eleven rigs now drilling or moving in enlarged Woodhull area.

Special to Sentinel

The second big well within a week hit production in the Woodhull gas field yesterday afternoon as the Carrie B. Calkins No. 2 broke loose. So great was the force of the newest producer, fifth in the field, that the cable parted leaving the bit and stem somewhere in the hole. The well gauged over 25 million cubic feet before it was shut in.

The new well came in early yesterday afternoon. Drilling had been proceeding on top of the sand for several hours and the well was already making some gas when all at once the flow stopped short. There was a fateful interval when no one in the Fairman Bros. rig could tell what would happen next—then suddenly with the roar of a Niagara the imprisoned gas broke loose spraying stone and sand in every direction. The crew was already raising the tools from the hole and had them approximately within 1,000 feet of the ground level when the cable suddenly went slack and shot out of the hole with no stem attached.

Experienced operators at the well voiced their belief the unusual series of events came because the Oriskany sand became so loose under the drill bit that it temporarily jammed in the hole forming a dam which held back the flow of gas. When the tremendous rock pressure built up behind this dam of rock it suddenly gave way. The force of the gas pressure on the tools must have lifted them partly in the hole causing the cable to kink, and the pull of the reel on top probably snapped the wire line in two. It is not known as yet whether the tools dropped to the bottom of the well or are stuck partly down the hole.

The Carrie B. Calkins, fourth producer in the Woodhull gas field, blew in Friday with a production of more than 20 million feet. Like the nearby Herrington discovery well, gas was struck in the Calkins in the very top of the sand, the drill having merely to scratch the surface when the big new producer came in with a roar that revealed further work in the hole was unnecessary.

The Carrie B. Calkins is owned by Cabot, Stroupe being the operating contractor. It is located only a few hundred feet east of the discovery well on the north side of the proven field.

Fairman Brothers were drilling in Becker's well a short distance from the new producer yesterday. The drill was in the sand and gas was expected from the hole at any moment. This well is located in the woods between the Herrington and Earl Calkins, second well in the field.

Larkin's well in Smokestack City was shut down yesterday waiting for pipe to case the hole. Drilling stopped when the bit had gone 25 feet in the Onondaga lime and the cellar was cemented up Tuesday. Located northwest of the proven field between the Herrington well and the village of Woodhull the owners of this well are not at all certain they will have a producer. It was expected the structure would be a little lower at that point than at the Herrington, but drilling has proved it to be about 60 feet lower. Hence drillers will watch the finish of this well to see whether it makes gas or salt water.

Although not yet finished this well has pretty well proved that the village of Woodhull is definitely off the structure. Those who have expected an epidemic of town lot drilling like the Wayne boom, can pretty certainly dismiss such a possibility as far as Woodhull is concerned.

While operators have experienced an unfavorable surprise with the drop of the structure in the town lot well, they have been more completely fooled by the Hattie Hand well. This operation of Sylvania's has run much higher than expected, in fact the Tully lime was 120 feet higher on the structure than in the Earl Calkins well which had been

Mrs. Jane Riddle, Painted Post, will supervise the song service. Mrs. Alice Kimball, Hornell, the devotional service and Mrs. Riddle will sing a vocal solo after the business meeting. The Rev. Davies will speak on other phases of the Chinese mission field and an inspirational address will be delivered by a speaker to be announced later. The afternoon program will close with a play "Forget-me-not Magic" by the members of the Borden Missionary Society.

Paul Denson, Corning, will preside at the closing session. Plans for this session have not been completed but the final business session will be held in the evening and there will be an organ recital and speaker. Laymen and ministers will be present at all sessions, which is planned as the largest held in several years.

THE WASTRELS VISITED ADDISON

The announcement last week that army men were to arrive in Addison immediately to demolish the CCC barracks on the Dininny flats three miles west of this village, marks the final chapter in a story of waste which gives local people a small sample of the type of wastrels riding high in the saddle at Washington. It is a sample only, for compared to the Addison fiasco many of the costly blunders of this administration are like sticking a pin up beside one of the Pyramids.

The Addison camp was announced with a great fanfare a short time before the national election last fall. It was to be the first step in a great encampment to house more than 3,000 young men who would build a three million dollar flood control dam on Tuscarora Creek. Boys were moved into Addison from various sections of the country, some coming from Louisiana to freeze in tents until the wooden barracks were put up. Money was spent with the usual abandon which accompanies the erection of buildings under stress of rush for time, only more so as there was no private individual with a personal stake at hand to see that expenditures be held in reasonable limits. Some men who hardly knew a plane from a hammer were put to work as carpenters at wages higher than they ever dreamed an expert could earn. No one could blame them for taking the money as long as it was the rate of pay established by those in charge of the project.

Finally the job was pronounced completed and just as the camp seemed about to become a settled thing and the boys were adjusting themselves to new conditions, the higher ups in CCC circles broke out in a rash of switching officers. Before the camp ran to the end of its short life there occurred at least three shifts in the command besides the shuffling of a number of minor officers, and the educational advisor who seemed to be doing a fair job was shipped out and replaced by another man whom the men took to less than they did the first.

Then eventually the order came through to ship the boys out of the Addison camp. Election was all over. Someone's pipe dream about flood control was to be supplanted by someone else's pipe dream.

The boys moved out and there followed a period of wanton destruction indicative of the absolute irresponsibility of the gang of New Dealers riding the wave of purchased favors in Washington. Blankets, apparently as good as new, were ruthlessly burned; shirts and other wearing apparel with only a tiny hole were cast into the bonfire; shoes with hardly a break in them went the same way; large, expensive copper kettles were ruined beyond repair by slashes of the axe; plumbing and other equipment was irreparably smashed and dishes were dashed to pieces with the careless abandon of the proverbial bull in a china shop. An invading army bent on destroying all useful property of an enemy could scarcely have acted as more thorough, wanton agents of destruction than the crew delegated to pillage the Addison camp.

That chapter in the New Deal property purge was completed last spring, soon after the CCC boys were evacuated from the camp. Now the last of the story will be written as workmen begin tearing down the buildings which cost so many thousands of tax money to build. Many local people are wondering just how much care will be taken to salvage any of this valuable lumber. Will the same spirit of recklessness run rampant that characterized the destruction of camp supplies and equipment? Even if care is taken to salvage what is possible from the buildings, the expense will run into a large sum to tear down a camp which from every surface indication was built merely as a gesture to buy local votes for the party in power. What do the wastrels in Washington care for twenty or thirty thousand dollars wasted here and there throughout the country, as long as they can fool a majority of the people into voting for continuance of New Deal nonsense?

All one needs do is to travel around the country a little bit to see the decay of glorified monuments to the folly of the gang of wastrels pulling the strings. Rex Tugwell would whisper a few words in the President's ear and presto Mr. Roosevelt would come out with a magnificent plan for helping needy folks get a new start in life. The Resettlement Administration. Millions were expended in fixing these places—deserted, worthless farms, into agricultural dreamlands costing about $20,000 apiece, where the government planned to locate indigent persons who never had the ability to run a $500 farm, let alone one with forty times as much overhead. You can see one of those monuments on the Horseheads-Ithaca road; choked with weeds, a few seedlings of some kind growing where a crew of men spent weeks literally sifting the soil through a sieve. The sign says it is a U. S. Resettlement Administration project, but there is no sign that anyone is settled or living there.

How long will the wastrels continue to throw away the people's money buying camp supplies to be burned up, building camps to tear down after less than six months occupancy, setting up giant waterpower projects like TVA for which there is little or no demand? How long can incompetent dreamers like Tugwell and Harry Hopkins continue to convince Roosevelt that the government debt should be piled higher and higher to try out their whims?

Well it cannot be much longer. The national debt is over 36 billion dollars. The Treasury is learning that it has almost reached the limit of borrowing without breaking the market for government securities. And the level-headed members of the Democratic party like Senators Glass, Byrd, Wheeler, Burke have indicated they intend to fight further attempts to push the country over the bank of ruin. Addison has seen with physical eyes the wanton work of the New Dealers. Other communities through the land have had similar glimpses of the work of the wastrels. They have come, painted their mark upon the countryside and moved on to new fields of misadventure but, the marks of this needless waste has opened the minds of the people.

YOUR BROTHER'S KEEPER

Recently a tragedy occurred in the greater community around Addison. A man had been drinking heavily in the company of close relatives. His mind became inflamed with the temporary insanity often induced by strong drink and turning his back upon wife and children this man wandered off alone to take his own life. Today the horror of that episode has laid a dark mantle upon that home. The four fatherless children are spared full realization of their loss by their tender age. But the wife, left a widow by this rash act, is cut down in young womanhood and the relatives who proved such bad company will doubtless harbor the black shadow of remorse throughout life. Human nature is such that these men will doubtless inflict limitless mental punishment upon themselves for the part they played in the tragedy.

Yet were they to blame?

We do not think so. Oh they should sustain a measure of self-condemnation for parts in the preliminary leading up to tragic ending. But a bigger, far more uncontrollable enemy of society is the really guilty party in the melodrama which brought so much sorrow to so many lives last week. And the name of that bitter enemy of every home in the land, the pitfall of unsuspecting youth is the age-old enemy King Alcohol.

For Alcohol is the guilty party that inflamed the minds of the young men until their distorted mentalities conceived ideas that each was his bitter enemy. Alcohol stirred the passion of one to a point where he was ready to quarrel at the slightest pretext. Alcohol magnified minor things in the temporarily clouded brain of the man and caused him to believe life and all it holds no longer mattered. And Alcohol kept that man's mind inflamed with the real and imagined failings of life until he was ready to throw his God-given life away, upon a wire fence.

To survey the tragedy in its abstract sense it seems impossible that a man would try to wipe out a fancied insult by taking his own life. But stripped of the ordinary covering that clothes such deeds it becomes apparent that the motivating element was not the human element, but the soul-searing urge of an old tyrant, King Alcohol.

How are such tragedies to be avoided? Many of them will never be. As long as alcohol is made and sold men will sacrifice life, honor and glory for its debauchery. But each of us as individuals can, through examples of sobriety, deter some weaker creatures from prostrating their souls.

If the relatives had not engaged in a drinking spree with the dead man, they would not now be facing a life of regret over the consequences. "Am I my brother's keeper?", Well unless some decide they should suffer restraint for those around them there will be many more facing lives of regret for tragedies in which they too may become an unwitting accessory.

Would YOU become your brother's keeper, or would you rather find yourself in the shoes of the two brothers of this man?

SOMEONE SAID "PIG"

A Saturday night shopper remarked to this writer a short time ago something as follows:

"We hunted up and down Main Street trying to find a place to park tonight, and there was no room for us anywhere. Finally we had to take the car clear down in front of the school building, and my husband's feet bother him so it is difficult for him to walk that far. We'll have to carry our groceries clear down there after we finish shopping.

"It seems as if local people are a little bit pigpish leaving their cars on Main Street all evening Saturday, when people from the country want to find a place to drive in, shop and get out again. If there were only a one-hour parking limit on Main street Saturday nights it would help out those who came here to shop, and the merchants as well".

Which is perfectly true and echoes statements in these columns. Whether a one-hour parking period could be enforced in Addison on Saturday evenings without making a lot of folks "mad", we do not know. Doubtless some who often park their cars on the street early and keep them there until ten o'clock, while they sit in the cars and watch the sights would be offended.

Revival of Court Bill Expected If Roosevelt 'Purge' Succeeds

By MARK SULLIVAN

THE practically universal assumption is that the next important development in politics will be an attempt to "purge" the Democratic party by President Roosevelt and his lieutenants. This is an assumption, but it is an assumption that virtually everybody holds. If the attempt at purge is made, it will have important consequences. If the attempt succeeds, the consequences will be important indeed.

The intended victims of the purge, those who are to have their tenure as Senators ended, are mainly those Democratic Senators who opposed Mr. Roosevelt's court proposal. As to those Senators, Mr. Roosevelt might have done one of two things. He might have recognized that they were acting upon their consciences and fulfilling their representative function in government. He might have realized there were so many of them—between a third and a half of all the Democrats in the Senate—that a court measure opposed by them could not be regarded as party policy. He might have accepted his defeat and said in effect, "all right, let's forget it; let's avoid a party split." That is what Vice-President Garner wanted and urged.

Or, Mr. Roosevelt might say in effect "The court measure is party policy because I as President say it is party policy." (That is substantially what National Chairman Farley did say while the fight was on.) Mr. Roosevelt might take the position that any Democratic Senator who did not support his court measure by that act made himself a party traitor, subject to expulsion, subject to political death.

By all the signs, and in the practically universal judgment, that is the position Mr. Roosevelt takes.

In the fight on the President's court measure there were forty-four Senators opposed. These forty-four are the men who defeated the proposal.

I say there were forty-four. The figures cannot be exact. There was never any rollcall directly on the bill. A number of Senators went on record against the measure, by public statements or otherwise. A number who did not go on record were known to be opposed. Leaders on both sides of the fight had private lists that were accurate up to a certain point. There were about eleven Senators who never gave any hint of their position, they were carefully secret about it; the presumption is that most of these would have voted against the measure had it come to a rollcall. There are several marginal Senators not easy to classify. Senator Hatch, of New Mexico, for example—he was against the President's original measure but favored the compromise one.

But let us say there were forty-four Senators known to be against the President's measure. Of these, sixteen were Republicans. These, of course, have no place in a Democratic purge and no place in this article.

The number of Democratic Senators against the President's measure was twenty-eight, and it is these who are to be purged from the party.

Of the twenty-eight, some come up for renomination and election next year, some in 1940, some in 1942. It is the ones who come up next year who are to be purged at once—they are "under the guns." Some of those coming up next year are not hated by the Administration as much as some who come up later. The special objects of hate, as listed by Senator Guffey, of Pennsylvania, are Senators Wheeler, of Montana; O'Mahoney, of Wyoming; Burke, of Nebraska. But these do not come up for two or four years.

The ones who come up next year, the ones who are immediately under the guns, the ones whose careers are to be ended next spring, are nine. Their names and their states are:

Adams, Colorado; Clark, Missouri; George, Georgia; Gillette, Iowa; Lonergan, Connecticut; McCarran, Nevada; Smith, South Carolina; Tydings, Maryland, and Van Nuys, Indiana.

These nine Democratic Senators were opposed to the President's court measure. These nine come up for renomination next spring. These nine are to be purged. The purge, of course, is to take place in the Democratic primaries, for it is there that the Administration lieutenants can exert their power. These nine are to be prevented from renomination.

If these nine, or approximately all of them, are next spring defeated for renomination, what follows? The consequences would be momentous. What is at issue is not merely the political lives of nine Democratic Senators. The consequences would seem to include these:

By the defeat of these nine, many of the other Democratic Senators and Representatives would be intimidated. If the Democrats in Congress as a whole have seemed supine to Mr. Roosevelt in the past, they would be more so in the future. Mr. Roosevelt would be entrenched in power as never before. What he would do, in the elation that would follow, is for any one to guess. As one guess I should imagine he might reintroduce his court measure, in precisely the same form as before, letter for letter, comma for comma, and force it through Congress. That kind of triumph would appeal to a person having a strong dramatic sense. What further steps Mr. Roosevelt would take, new steps going even farther than the court measure, is again within the field of future speculation. Some of us have surmises for which we think we have good grounds.

An Open Letter To Baron von Neurath

By DOROTHY THOMPSON

Dear Sir:

We see from your speech in Stuttgart on Sunday that the government of which you are Foreign Minister intends to organize Nazi groups in this country, made up of German Americans and professional agitators sent from the Fatherland, and getting their orders from Germany. You warn us that Germany will not tolerate that foreign governments should discriminate against such German groups within their boundaries.

In other words you warn us that you intend to spread your propaganda on our soil, and that our government dare not interfere. Thank you for making your purposes so plain. A few of us have always held that this was your intention. You are for an open conspiracy, openly arrived at. Now we can understand each other.

Another of your spokesmen at Stuttgart, Ernest Bohler, "leader" of the Nazi Foreign Organization, helped to clarify things for us. He said, "Whoever lives abroad as a German business man, is working not only for himself but primarily in the service of the German Fatherland.

We wonder if you, a trained diplomat, of long service, have forgotten what you once must have known, that the admission of any foreigner to this country is not a matter of right, upon which the foreigner can insist, but of comity and hospitality. It is assumed that a guest in one's house will not spit on the floor, break the furniture, or insult other guests. Yet, you are instructing German guests in our house to mock our institutions, to pervert them whenever possible, to spread hostility against organized workers, and finally to divide our own house against itself. The American conception of civil liberties, our protection of free speech, alone makes the toleration of such groups possible. You know perfectly well that you would not tolerate any activities promoted by a foreign government on your own soil. On what ground, therefore, do you appeal to us for toleration? On the ground of reciprocity?

Do you remember, Mr. Minister, that in 1933, when we extended formal recognition to Soviet Russia, we did so only on condition that Russia would conduct no propaganda activities here. And when it appeared from the Meeting of the Comintern in August, 1935, that it did intend to exert an influence on citizens of this country, the United States protested to the point of threatening to break off diplomatic relations.

On the same day that your speech was reported, 25,000 of your followers held a rally on Long Island. There they heard the Nazi government of Germany praised. They were allegedly American citizens of German extraction, but they uttered no word of praise for American institutions. They announced that they were mobilized to fight the C. I. O., and save us from bolshevism.

We are pretty good at this saving business ourselves. Once, in 1848, we saved thousands of your most valuable citizens from extermination, by opening our doors to them. We have not yet observed that any one is fleeing to your country for refuge. Since 1933 we have given haven to some of your most distinguished people. And whether they came to this country as refugees from political oppression, or for other reasons, Germans have helped to settle this country, and have been among its most desirable citizens. No one forgets the place of his birth, even if he was driven from it. But as citizens of this state, they have given undivided allegiance to it. And in 1917, when we were, unhappily, at war with your country, thousands of men of German blood shed it for the United States of America. But in the future we are to presume no such loyalty. For you are saying, in effect, that one drop of German blood cannot be washed out by a thousand oaths of allegiance.

Apparently it has not occurred to you, Mr. Minister, that we may not want to be saved for Nazism. In our crazy American way, we prefer order and freedom as we conceive it, to what you conceive it to be. We prefer trial by jury to trial by bludgeon. We prefer free speech to a prostitute press. We prefer free universities, free science and free art, to education, science and art dictated by a political party. The right to worship however, wherever and whatever we please is written in our Constitution, and we have not yet taken to framing priests and nuns or to putting pastors into concentration camps. We don't forbid Americans to join Rotary Clubs, as you recently forbade your citizens—on the ground that no German could belong to an organization having international affiliations. And we wonder, how in the face of that, you can have the effrontery to contemplate establishing an international propaganda organization on our soil. In this country a man can join the Elks, the Beavers, the Moose, the Masons, the Knights of Columbus or the C. I. O., providing he keeps the law. But if he acts as the agent of a foreign government, we consider him a spy.

Any time that an American wants to travel, all he has to do is pack his bag and leave. In your country he has to beg for $10 worth of foreign exchange and agree to be back by Saturday night. We can spend our money where we choose and for what we choose. Your citizens must buy where they are told and what a political party permits them to buy. We can work at what we please and where we please. In your country a man who leaves his farm is regarded as a "deserter" and can be punished. If an American wants to import a giraffe, he can do it. But you, Mr. Minister, can import only what a political party allows you to import.

We have our gangsters, Mr. Minister, but we haven't yet put them in uniforms and turned them loose on the rest of the citizenry.

And we don't regard our President as a weakling because he didn't pull Mr. Hoover out of bed in the middle of the night and blow his brains out, as Mr. Hitler did with his political opponent, Ernst Roehm.

We know that your great international propaganda cry is that you want to save the world from communism. But we see very little difference between your system and Russian bolshevism. In both there is a suppression of all civil and human liberties, and civil and human liberties are what this country happens to be about. And we suspect that you are not interested in saving us, but in dividing us. We observe that Japan, your ally, is saving China in a bath of Chinese blood. We saw your friend, Mussolini, save Ethiopia a little while ago. And you are both busy saving Spain now. From such saviors may we be saved!

We have our family quarrels, of course. But we think that on such occasions decency and good manners require that strangers keep out. When we need you we'll send for you.

Survey Shows Alcoholics Cause 344 Auto Accidents Since Jan.

There were 344 "alcoholic" accidents, 25 fatal and 319 non-fatal, in which 28 persons were killed and 553 injured. Eleven of these fatal accidents occurred on State highways, three fatal accidents at intersections and three between intersections, two fatal accidents took place on bridges, one occurred in a driveway and five fatal accidents took place on curves in the roadway.

Road and Weather conditions

Sixty per cent of the fatal accidents occurred under favorable motoring conditions. This is the same ratio that applies to all motor vehicle fatalities regardless of the condition of the motorist.

Time

Fifteen of these fatal accidents occurred during the night, six between the hours of 12 and 4 A. M., and nine between the hours of 8 and 12 P. M. Seven occurred in the evening between 4 and 8 P. M. One occurred in the afternoon, while no time was stated for the remaining two fatal accidents.

Eighty per cent or 281 of these accidents occurred between the hours of 4 P. M. and 4 A. M.

Friday, Saturday and Sunday were the days on which the majority of these accidents occurred. Three fatal accidents occurred on Monday, two on Tuesday and four on each of the remaining days of the week.

Car

There were 29 passenger cars involved in fatal accidents, one commercial, one taxi, one motorcycle, and three not stated. Vehicles involved in fatal accidents were in good condition with the exception of three cars—one had glaring headlights and two were reported as not having headlights lighted.

Injured

There were 28 persons killed as a result of these 25 fatal accidents. Six were pedestrians, while the remaining 22 were occupants or the drivers of the motor vehicles involved.

Two of the pedestrians were walking on rural roadways, two were killed crossing the streets, one killed while working in the roadway and one killed while walking on a sidewalk.

Eighteen of the persons killed were between the ages of 25 and 64, five were in the 15 to 24 age group, three were 65 years or over, while the ages of the remaining two were not stated.

There were 553 persons injured in the 344 accidents involving intoxicated drivers, 99 were seriously injured, 104 were severely shocked, while the remaining persons received minor hurts. Twenty of these injured were children under 15 years of age.

Motorists

All motorists involved in fatal accidents with one exception, were men. The ages of drivers in both fatal and non-fatal accidents are shown as follows:

Under 18 years: Fatal 0, non-fatal 1; 18 to 24 years, fatal 2, non-fatal 52; 25 to 64 years, fatal 21, non-fatal, 256; 65 years and over, fatal 1, non-fatal 5; not stated, fatal 1, non-fatal 5. Total, fatal 25, non-fatal 319. Total all accidents, 344.

In analyzing the above groups, it is found that motorists under 18 years of age were involved in one accident occurring between the hours of 8 and 12 A. M.

The second group, with ages between 18 and 24, were responsible for 54 accidents, 38 of which occurred between 8 A. M. and 4 P. M., 9 accidents between 4 and 8 P.M., while the remaining accidents occurred during the day.

The third group, 25 to 64 years of age, were involved in 277 accidents, 166 of which took place between the hourse of 8 P. M| and 4 A. M., 55 between 4 and 8 P. M., while the remaining number of accidents (56) occurred during the other twelve hours of the day.

The fourth group, 65 years and over, had six accidents between the hours of 4 P. M. and 4 A. M., as did the group which failed to state their age.

More than 80 per cent of these intoxicated drivers were experienced drivers, having driven automobiles for more than one year. In only 11 instances was the driving experience found to be less than one year. The remaining drivers failed to state their driving experience.

Motorists Violations

In 33 per cent of fatal accidents, the intoxicated driver was on the wrong side of the road; 30 per cent of the fatalities were caused by miscellaneous negligent acts; in 21 per cent of the cases the intoxicated driver was exceeding the speed limit; 12 per cent of the accidents were caused by the driver proceeding without having the right of way, while the remaining 4 per cent of accidents were caused by intoxicated motorists cutting in front of other vehicles.

Type of Accident

The most serious form of accident in which intoxicated motorists were involved was collision with other vehicles. There were 248 such accidents, resulting in 11 deaths and 444 injuries.

The second in seriousness was collision with a fixed object; there were 43 accidents of this nature, resulting in six deaths.

There were 24 accidents involving pedestrians, resulting in five deaths and 21 injuries.

There were 15 non-collision accidents resulting in three deaths and 19 injuries.

The remaining 14 accidents were miscellaneous in nature, resulting in three deaths and 14 injuries.

Conclusions

It is found from this survey that the greatest number of serious accidents involving intoxicated drivers, occurred in rural localities close to urban communities.

That road and weather conditions played a very small part in the causation of these accidents—the largest percentage of fatal accidents occurring under favorable conditions.

That road locations which are confusing to the normal driver are doubly so to the intoxicated driver. Witness the accidents on curves and the resultant collision with fixed objects.

That alcohol accidents take place mainly during the night; the most hazardous hours of the day, and contrary to normal experience, during the mid-week.

That the car used by the intoxicated driver is in apparent good condition.

That the autoists are the greatest sufferers themselves which is also contrary to normal experience.

That the greatest number of intoxicated drivers are in the conservative age groups and had considerable driving experience.

That intoxicants unquestionably affect the driving ability of a person. Witness the number of accidents occurring while the intoxicated driver was on the wrong side of the road, the high rate of speed under improper conditions and other negligent acts.

That the severity of these accidents is much greater than normal motor vehicle accidents. One out of every 14 of these alcoholic accidents is a fatal one, while the experience of all motor vehicle accidents for the first half of this year shows that only one accident in

EARLY OIL STRUGGLE MAKES GREAT DRAMA

A vivid re-enactment of the battles fought over the world's first oil pipe line is an exciting feature of the big new cinema production, "High, Wide and Handsome."

Randolph Scott, as an oil pioneering Pennsylvania farmer, carries the brunt of the fight for control of the oil industry.

Lovely Irene Dunne has in the new picture probably the greatest role of her brilliant career.

First Pipe Line Depicted in Exciting Film Play

By LATTIMER SHAW

ONE of the most dramatic pages of American history—the discovery of oil and the birth of the gigantic oil industry—has at last engaged the attention of genius. The result is a magnificent and thrilling motion picture, "High, Wide and Handsome," which will entertain countless millions throughout the world during the next twelve months.

The story is that of the Tide Water Associated Oil Company and the desperate conflict between its Pennsylvania farmer pioneers, struggling to build a great pipe line to get the world's first oil down to tide water, and the transportation interests fighting for control of the industry in the years following the discovery of "God's Gold" at Titusville, Pa., in 1859.

Produced by Paramount, "High, Wide and Handsome" is a return to the "colossal" scale of movie making, with an enormous cast, lavish sets, great location panoramas and quick violent action. The story was dramatized by Oscar Hammerstein II with five special songs by Jerome Kern, the pair who turned out "Show Boat." The cast is headed by Irene Dunne, star of "Cimarron" and other great pictures, Randolph Scott and Dorothy Lamour with 36 other well known players in name roles backed by thousands of extras. Opening at the Astor Theater in New York, July 21, it will complete its run there and then go on its way around the world spending four or five months in two score key cities before being seen in the smaller communities.

Miss Dunne, a medicine show entertainer stranded in Titusville, Pa., marries Randolph Scott, a young farmer, while he is experimenting with the world's first oil well. From the [illegible] story moves rapidly into the vicious struggle between the oil drilling farmers and their commercial enemies. Battles with blacksnake whips, shotguns, stones and wrenches are depicted with vivid action and beautiful photography.

Workers are attacked and slain and locomotives haul the pipe from the earth. In the face of this violence the farmers carry on and build the world's first pipe line across rivers and over mountains to the refinery at Bayonne, N. J.

Motorists Urged to Avoid Last Minute Rush

Despite repeated appeals from the State Motor Vehicle Bureau officials for early operators' renewals, to date, only 10 per cent of New York's motorists have renewed their driving licenses.

With but nineteen and a half business days remaining in which to make these renewals, motorists were again urged to avoid the last minute rush with its subsequent delays.

Commissioner Harnett pointed out that no further extension of time will be granted after the September 30 deadline.

Someone Said "Pig"

Others would realize that a limited parking time in congested areas here as well as elsewhere is a matter of justice to all—if it be impartially enforced.

In any event the merchants of Addison would wake up to the fact there is a parking problem in this village and take some measures to bring relief to all who desire to make this place their purchasing center. There is an area near Main Street which could be converted into a parking space to the great advantage of local merchants and the general public of this vicinity. It is about time merchants awoke to the fact of this need and did something about it.

How, What and Why

This paper has arranged with the Office of Information of the New York State Colleges of Agriculture and Home Economics to answer questions about problems of farm and home. If you enclose a self-eddressed, stamped envelope, and mention the name of this paper, you will receive a direct reply to your query from the colleges. Do not ask more than one question in one letter or on one post card. Ask as many questions as you like, but make each one a separate communication.

Floor Paint Sticks

R. S., writes: "The paint on my kitchen floor is sticky, although it was painted with white lead, raw oil and dryer, three months ago. Dirt grinds into the floor and cannot be cleaned out. What is wrong?"

Professor B. B. Robb of the department of agricultural engineering answers: "The reason for this, in my opinion, is the paint used.

"White lead and raw linseed oil is not a good floor paint. Both will dry soft. Unquestionbly, not enough drier was added to cause them to dry beyond their normal dryness, which would be so soft that dirt would grind into them.

"A white lead floor paint should be mixed with boiled linseed oil, and to each gallon of paint add one quart of outside spar varnish. A better floor paint could be made by adding to the white lead 25 per cent of zinc oxide and a small quantity of barytes. If a white floor paint is not wanted, darker ingredients than white lead are just as good."

Turkey Pasture

M. F., asks: "What kind of pasture is good for turkeys?"

Professor D. B. Johnstone-Wallace of the agronomy department replies: "The type of pasture required for turkeys does not differ greatly from that required by dairy cows.

"The sward should be extremely dense and leafy, and should not be allowed to exceed about four inches in height at any time. Plants most suitable are wild white clover, Kentucky bluegrass, rough stalked meadow grass, Canada bluegrass, perennial ryegrass and timothy. To develop properly, these plants require a high level of fertility"

TODAY'S TAXOGRAM

Combined state, local and national debts, at the end of the last fiscal year, amounted to $415.96 for each person in the country, an average of $1,663.84 per family. This is the sum that must eventually be collected in taxes (in addition to the annual running expenses of the government) before the government debt is cleared up. In 1913, the federal, state and local debt amounted to $59.28 per person.

Selecting Pullets

Before going through the flock of young pullets, make sure they are in the best possible physical condition. Many good pullets may be thrown out if the feeding or management has been poor.

In handling the birds perhaps the handiest method of holding the bird is that of sliding the left hand underneath with one or two fingers along the breast bone. In this way the bird rests easily and may be examined with little trouble.

One of the first impressions of the bird is its size and weight in comparison with the remainder of the flock. A bird which is both heavy and large is the best producer as a rule. If she is light for her size she may not be healthy. All birds which are not alert and active should be discarded.

Notice the feathering of the bird. Those that have "bare backs" are slow in maturing and are likely to be slow in laying if they ever reach good production. Keep the birds which have feathered well.

Pullets which have well-proportioned heads and strong beaks which are not long are preferable to those with a hawk-like appearance. Bright prominent eyes are an indication of good health and a good layer. Birds which have feathers which do not lie close to the head are thought to be undesirable especially of they have other undesirable characteristics.

The body of the good pullet is long and deep. At the back it is broad. Birds whose bodies taper down at the rear are usually poor layers as well as those which have shallow bodies. The keel bone should be long, and slightly curved.

Avoid keeping birds which have thin heads, very narrow serrations in the comb, shaggy eye-brows, long, ungainly necks or legs, extremely short legs, round shanks, heavy jaws and all those which do not conform to characteristics of the breed. Sometimes a bird which has some defects in a breed characteristic makes a good layer and may be kept through the season of good egg prices but should be removed at hatching time if hatching is done from the flock.

The Association of American Railroads reports that orders for new equipment are the largest in several years. Included in the order were: freight cars 45,176, the largest order for any year since 1925; steam locomotives 329, the largest order of this type of equipment since 1930.

NEWSPAPER HONESTY

"Many factors enter into the making of a newspaper, whether it be large or small, and the excellence of the finished product naturally depends to a large extent upon the opportunities which its field offers to the editor and publisher.

"But there is one fundamental quality which is important to every newspaper, regardless of its size, and that is honesty of expression. Commenting on this point some time ago, the Montgomery (Ala.) Advertiser said:

"'What counts in judging the character of a newspaper is whether it reasons with intellectual honesty in arriving at its conclusions, or makes an appeal to prejudices and emotions in order to influence the reading public to accept its opinions.'

"We may add that every editor frequently faces the necessity of making a decision on this very point. It is easy to tell the reader what he wants to hear, to take the popular side, to run with the pack. But it takes courage sometimes to express an opinion, however sound, in opposition to the prevailing sentiment.

"But in such a case, no editor worthy of his responsible calling ever hesitates. He gives his honest opinions, regardless of who agrees or disagrees with them".

Thus speaks the Toccoa, Georgia, Record. The editorial might well have been addressed to many politicians who do not seem to have the high ideals of the average newspaper editor.

The average life of a tree is between 200 and 300 years.

Every service is so directed as to reflect beauty, a happier life in the Hereafter. We realize that the sentiment involved in a funeral service is precious and our every act is guided by that thought.

I Pick 'em Up

TRUE STORIES OF HITCH HIKERS

by L. ELLIS EVONS

He Was Flimflammed — But Saw The Quints

New Yorkers are supposed to think of the people in small towns as hicks, call them other affectionate names, and in all ways express their contempt for those inexperienced inhabitants. My hitch hiker this particular day was a supposedly all wise New Yorker who could not be sold the city hall or the public park by an unknown stranger. Yet he was taken over. Here is how it happened. He tells his story.

"I am a counter man or short order cook, and I have been working for Childs Restaurant in New York. Last Summer I thought I would hitch hike up to Canada and see the famous Quintuplets. On the way I was approached by a fellow who asked for information about a bus line out of a town we were in.

Another fellow came up and said, "That guy you were just talking to has some money and if you will hold the stakes we will get him to bet and we will both make something." I did not want to be bothered, but having nothing to do, I finally consented. My second acquaintance then engaged the first fellow in conversation and after what seemed like a little persuasion we went off to a little room and the leader brought out three cards. I had heard of 'Three Card Monty' but had never seen it played. He had got the other fellow to bet he could pick the right card. Well sometimes he won, sometimes the other.

"The guy with the cards turned a corner of the winning card when the second fellow was not looking and then kept on winning until he had $18. He had given me the wink when he marked the card and suggested that I take a bet with the loser. Thinking I was being tipped off to a good thing, I picked the card that had the corner turned and won. This I did several times. The others now suggested that I make a bigger bet and as I was $8 ahead, they got me to bet $15 dollars which was all I had. I picked the marked card only to find to my surprise that it was the wrong one.

"The two were working a skin game and had changed the cards right in front of my eyes. I had to work in a lunch wagon for a week to get some more money. I thought I was a wise guy, a New Yorker, but I was only a hick.

"After I had worked and made some more money, I hiked to Canada and finally got to see the famous quintuplets. You have to walk or take a bus about a mile out of the town. They have a dandy place fixed up for them. About a thousand people were waiting in line. You cannot stop but just move along slowly and look at them through wire and glass. They only let visitors look at them in the morning for a few hours. The glass is special, so that you can see the babies, but they cannot see you. They certainly were cute. Their parents live right across the street in a dilapidated looking house. They sell souvenirs and post cards and lucky stones. The stones are supposed to give people good luck in having children, singly or in bunches, and they say that some women who never had children had their wish. All a state of mind, I suppose."

Restless spirit, this lad, suit case in hand, all his worldly possessions, on his way to some other part of the country.

Good Hay Crop Reported by Canisteo Valley Farmers

This year of 1937 has been one of the best hay years in several seasons in the estimation of many of the farmers in the Canisteo Valley who have been farming it here for several years. In addition to there being a plentiful crop there was a good crop of good hay. Most of the barns are well filled and some farmers report their barns are filled with more hay this year than they have had in several seasons. This means that many of them will have smaller feed bills during the winter season when the horses and cattle are in the barns a good part of the time.

Erie RR Developments Are Watched Locally

Local and vicinity people interested in the Erie Railroad during the past years will be interested in watching developments concerning that railroad. The Erie has long been in receivership and was at one time part of the large Van Sweringen brothers railroad empire. However, with the death of the brothers the Erie has been sort of left up-in-the-air pending action of the Chesapeake and Ohio rail lines to purchase the full control of the Erie. Rumors are that this deal will be consummated within a short time. A greater volume of traffic will accrue to the Erie by virtue of the transfer.

Suicide Had Threatened Before to Take Life

Later reliable information coming to this newspaper office about the suicide of last week, changes some details from the published notice.

The stricken man, Orville Rowley of Jasper, according to information given by relatives had been drinking heavily with close blood kin. Rowley's wife, fearing to go home alone when her husband was in that condition persuaded her brother-in-law to accompany her home. There were no blows struck Rowley quitting the house soon after his wife and brother-in-law arrived.

Rowley was a capable man when not under the influence of liquor. He was a skilled wireless operator but lately had taken to drinking heavily and while in this irresponsible condition had frequently threatened to take his own life. Naturally his relatives thought at first last week, that this was just another idle threat such as he had made before.

The publishers are glad to afford the readers of this paper this later information regarding the tragedy.

Addison Descendant Called Here Labor Day

This town was honored Labor Day when a visitor stating he is a direct descendant of the man for whom this town was named, George B. Addison, his wife and two children, Virginia and George Jr., stopped at Pepper's restaurant for dinner. Mr. Addison is treasurer of the Keystone Photo-Engraving Corporation of New York.

Having toured the state while on a vacation, Mr. Addison decided to come through this town while taking his daughter, Virginia to Geneva, where she is a student at the William Smith College. As a direct descendant of Joseph Addison from whom this hamlet takes its name it is hoped Mr. Addison will visit this town again in the near future and disclose facts about his illustrious ancestor which would be of extreme interest to the inhabitants of Addison.

unique roller-skating number. Others include a solo dance by Astaire in time to the whirling machinery of an ocean liner's engine-room, another solo in the finale, a sparkling duet dance by Astaire and Harriet Hoctor, America's foremost ballet artiste, and a solo number by Miss Hoctor, as well as a group of novel ensemble dances especially created for the picture.

Six song hits composed by George and Ira Gershwin are featured in the film, of which,"They Can't Take That Away," "I've Got Beginner's Luck," and "Let's Call the Whole Thing Off," are in the best-seller class.

In addition to Miss Hoctor, the featured cast of the picure includes Edward Everet Horton, Eric Blore Ketti Gallian, Jerome Cowan and William Brisbane.

Blending romance, melody, dancing and laughter, "Shall We Dance," the new Fred Astaire-Ginger Rogers musical film is said to hit a new high in screen entertainment, at the Avon Sun-Mon.

Made on a scale that surpasses all the noted duo's previous vehicles and offering brilliant novelties in its dances, songs and settings, "Shall We Dance" is hailed as the finest and most entertaining picture of the two stars' careers.

The story deals with he hectic love affair between Astaire as an outstanding ballet dancer, and Miss Rogers as a noted revue favorite Astaire's interest in the slender tap-dancer leads to a series of incidents which in turn give rise to popular belief that the two are married.

Despite Miss Roger's denials, the rumors grow and [illegible]le to escape the resulting pub[illegible], the two decide that the[illegible] way to obtain their freedo[illegible] is actually to get married.

This ingeniou[illegible] is played against a glittering background of modern life, with spectacular dances and tuneful song numbers woven into the action, and with even more romance and comedy than any of the previous Astaire-Rogers vehicles.

The two stars present three dances together, one of them a highly

SCHOOL LUNCHES

School days are apt to hold more charms for younger members of the family who carry their lunches when they are sure of a "bang-up" good noon meal.

Appetizing and nourishing school lunches depend on good planning. Says the New York State College of Home Economics. When a hot dish such as milk and vegetable soup, cocoa or a creamed dish is served at school, planning a lunch box at home is not difficult. With such hot dishes, a sandwich, fruit and perhaps something sweet like cookies or jam sandwiches make a good lunch.

The hot dish at school is prepared at little expense in many rural schools of New York state and in almost every instance the health of the pupils has improved.

When a hot dish is not served at school, the home-packed lunch might well consist of the following:

A substantial sandwich made of whole wheat or white bread or a roll hollowed out and filled with meat, hard-cooked egg, cheese or baked beans.

A succulent food: This may be a vegetable sandwich or a fresh vegetable to be eaten raw, such as carrot strips, celery or tomatoes.

Milk in some form: A bottle of milk, cheese or custard; if a thermos bottle can be carried, hot cocoa or vegetable soups are good (or these may be brought in a sealed glass fruit jar and heated in a large flat pan of water on top of the school stove).

Fruit: A whole fruit, such as an orange, an apple or grapes, or fruit cut up or stewed, or canned in a glass jar, or dried fruit such as dates, figs and raisins.

A sweet if desired: This may be a sweet sandwich, a piece of plain cake, a cooky or a bit of sweet chocolate.

Former Woodhull Printer Dies

The citizens of Hallstead and vivinity deeply regret the passing of one of its most prominent and active citizens, Mr. Ira A. Thomas, 68, publisher of the Lackawanna Trail News and The County Herald, on Saturday morning, August 28, after several months' illness. He had published this paper for nearly 37 years, the second longest in point of service in Susquehanna County—Hon. F. T. Gelder having first place.

Mr. Thomas was born in Woodhull, on April 1, 1869. Learning the printer's trade there over fifty years ago, he became composing room foreman on Elmira and Corning papers before coming to Hallstead.

He was a prominent member of Hope Grange, holding the office of Overseer at the time of his death, and was president of Rose Hill Cemetery Association.

Mr. Thomas could always be counted upon for the promotion of those community programs which meant so much for the welfare of the people. His newspaper was one of the most widely-read publications in this section of the state and highly respected by all classes and groups in the community, maintaining, as it did, the highest standards in the field of newspaper journalism. He was one of the most active and faithful members of the Grange and a devoted Christian and member of the Hallstead Presbyterian Church. He united with the Presbyterian Church in 1923 and in 1929 was elected, ordained and installed an Elder in that church for a one-year term to fill a vacancy at the time, and was reelected in 1930, 1933 and 1936 for three-year terms each. As a member of the Session, he represented the church in Lackawanna Presbytery on one or two occasions; was treasurer of benevolences for several years, and acting clerk of the Session and congregation on a number of occasions. He was a "workman that needeth not to be ashamed" in his study and handling of the Word of God, and a laborer in the Kingdom. The church will long remember him for his efficiency and faithfulness. Deceased was of that quiet and retiring type of man whose chief interest was in his home and his family; who was considerate of his neighbor.

Funeral services were held on Monday, August 30, at his late residence in Hallstead at 2 P. M. and the Hallstead Presbyterian Church at 2:30 o'clock. Rev. H. M. Pease, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Cooperstown, N. Y., a former pastor of the Hallstead Baptist Church, assisted Rev. Wm. H. Johnston, the pastor. Both pastors paid high tribute to Mr. Thomas as a man, citizen and church leader. With Mrs. Lauretta Stimson at the organ, Mrs. W. E. Hinkley and Mr. Henry Symonds sang beautiful appropriate hymns, "Hiding in Thee" and "Home of the Soul".

On July 11, 1894 he was married to Minnie DeLong. Besides his widow eleven children survive: six sons, George W., of Ilion, N. Y.; Raymond, Cincinnati, O.; Reginald, Rochester; Lynn, Hallstead; Donald, Great Bend; Bergen, Binghamton. Five daughters, Mrs. I. F. Leonard, Jamestown, N. Y.; Geraldine, Binghamton; Minnie, Philadelphia; DeWave, Binghamton and Lottie of Hallstead. Two brothers, Amos W. and Walter S., of Oneonta, N. Y.

The following Elders of the church acted as honorary pall bearers: Wm. H. McGreary, R. H. Barnes, A. J. Gere, Elmer Lawrence. Active pall bearers were members of Hope Grange: W. J. Schooley, J. E. Schobig, Harold Smith, Darwin Stranahan, Ernest Chamberlin, Martin Foley. Interment was in the family plot in Rose Hill cemetery.

Crop Surplus Meets Master

A little more than a year ago farm leaders representing agricultural organizations extending over the country, sat down at a table with executives of the leading chain stores. The farm leaders had an idea they wished to discuss—producers with various crops were faced with heavy seasonal surpluses that could not be sold through ordinary channels without ruinous losses—and they believed the chains could be of assistance.

Out of this came the producer-consumer campaigns. First the canned peach industry was found to be in serious straits—so chains, with 37,000 outlets, put on a special drive to sell peaches at attractive prices. In short order campaigns were inaugurated on behalf of beef raisers, dried fruit products, turkey and poultry raisers, lamb breeders, etc. In every case these campaigns achieved their objective—the moving of surpluses at prices that brought farmers a fair return, and still gave the consumer good bargains.

A short time ago a nationally known farm leader said: "We have been stumbling around for years trying to find a solution of the farm problem; all our solutions have failed, but here is the solution—the united effort of the retail distributors".

The chain stores are planning other producer-consumer campaigns for the future. Lately organizations representing organized independent merchants have said that they too will put on similar drives. Never in history was the farmer provided with so economical and efficient a marketing system for his crops. Producer - distributor cooperation marks a major milestone in the development of American agriculture.

Daily Time Records

FOR OPERATORS OF MOTOR TRUCKS

The law requires Truck and Bus Drivers to keep a daily Time Record of their working time. Inspectors are checking up to see that drivers keep these records properly. Don't get caught without them.

Speed—the Great Killer Brings New Laws

During recent years a number of states have adopted the "basic rule" speed law—a measure whereby no fixed highway speed is prescribed, but drivers are required to operate their vehicles with due care. Today in many of those states motor vehicle officials are coming to the view that the basic rule has failed, and that a fixed speed law, rigidly enforced, is necessary to prevention of accidents. The national organization which studied highway legislation and first advocated the basic rule, has now changed its position, and urges fixed speed limits.

So the motorist has failed in his responsibility under a law which gave the individual wide leeway in his driving habits. Speed is still the great highway killer, breeding more violent deaths than any other driving error. It is a harsh commentary on drivers that the bulk of fatal automobile accidents occur on first class, straight highways, under good weather and visibility conditions, and involve cars in passable mechanical condition. Speed—the insane instinct to "open her up"—is the answer.

It is apparent that the automobile death and injury rate will continue to climb until all states cooperate to modernize their traffic codes in the light of modern conditions. Appeals to the motorist's instincts of self-preservation and public responsibility, have produced some results—but much more must be done. Speeds must be reduced. And the offending driver must be punished under laws enforced without fear or favoritism.

This Week in Sports

Despite the fact that the Hazelton-Elmira game was to decide whether Elmira would remain in championship position last week, the stands were less than two-thirds filled and then most of the attendants were from outside Elmira.

—o—

Congratulations to Elmira for winning the NYP league leadership for the first time since 1914. Twenty-three years is a long time to be seeking a pennant and any team that can remain fighting through those years deserve more than my humble congratulations.

—o—

Poor old Bill Terry will have to worry along on $40,000 per year while managing the Giants. He now has more power than the late John McGraw ever had in the management of the Giants. The farm system is more elaborate and complicated now.

—o—

Incidentally the Giants are fighting for all the world to retain their top position in the National League. The Cubs have too many injuries to remain in top place at this season of the year.

—o—

The fifth annual field day of the Steuben County Federation Clubs will be held in Wayland September 18 and 19.

Don Budge seems to be America's gift to the amateur tennis world this year. The Forest Hills matches have given him ample opportunity to display his mettle. And he promises not to turn professional, at least for the time being.

—o—

Wonder what Max Schmeling thinks of American sportsmanship now, that he has again been given the runaround in his desire for a bout with the Brown Bomber?

—o—

Sir Malcolm Campbell is a demon for speed. Last week he established a world's record for power boats when he drove his Bluebird over the waters of Lake Maggiore, Switzerland, at a speed of 125.7494 miles per hour. He also holds the motor car speed record established in 1935 at Salt Lake City of 325 miles plus. On the highways he believes in a 40-mile limit. Imagine that?

—o—

The endurance swim of this man Zimmy who swam from Albany to New York proved nothing, unless that the human system is subject to pneumonia if emersed in water too long. Yet, I suppose some people will flock some place and pay for the privilege of seeing him.

—o—

Saw a picture of Eleanor Holm Jarrett the other day with the title "One of America's best known sportswoman". And I would disagree with the caption writer for a sport carries through and obeys training rules. She failed in this on her third Olympic try feeling that two previous tries gave her special privileges. And now she is "welching" on her bargain with Art Jarrett, music director, in wanting to divorce him. As the English would say, "That's not cricket".

Pratt's Motor Boat Burns on Keuka

The interior of a motor boat owned by Surrogate George W. Pratt, who with his family is summering near Lakeside, was reported considerably damaged by fire and an explosion Monday evening near Gibson's Landing on Lake Keuka. His son and a companion escaped injury.

It was reported that the boat caught fire and an explosion occurred in the gasoline tank section but George C. Pratt, son of Surrogate and Mrs. Pratt, and a youthful companion jumped to safety.

Farm Bureau Shows Field Tests at Fair

Dairy feed crops will be featured in the farm bureau exhibit at the Steuben County Fair, with samples taken from a score of farms where tests have been conducted this year.

There will be three varieties of soybeans, the Manchu, Dunfield, Wilson, grown on the farm of Frank Crandall of Cameron. A sample of 29-3 corn, a new variety, grown on the farm of Lynn Woolever of Arkport, will be on display, as well as samples of some of the old established varieties such as Cornell 11 and others.

Cayuga soybeans, the variety grown for grain, will be demonstrated in samples grown on the Sherman Honeyman farm at Mt. Washington, near Bath.

There will be oats of the Cornellian, Ithacan, Lenroc and Upright varieties grown on the farms of A. W. Tucker, Campbell; Frank Strobel, Cohocton; and Irwin Knapp of Pulteney.

The effects of fertilizer application to pature will be demonstrated in samples taken from the pastures of Carl Wellington, Oak Hill, near Arkport. These will include sods that have received fertilizer and those that have not.

The exhibit will be made complete with samples of alfalfa hay grown according to farm bureau recommendations. The purpose of the display, according to Lynn Bookout, assistant farm bureau manager, is to show the results of the various tests and demonstrations of dairy feed crops.

The farm bureau booth as usual will be established in the Grange Hall, and there all Steuben county farmers will receive a cordial welcome.

Army Offers Opportunities For Education and Travel Recruiting Officer Here

Sergeant Burton N. Everett, U. S. Army recruiter for this area, will be at the post office next Monday, September 13, to interview those young men from Addison and vicinity who desire information regarding army service.

According to Sergeant Everett, opportunities now offered by the army have never before been equalled in the history of the service. For those young men, especially high school graduates, who care to continue their education, a chance is offered to qualify for enrollment in one of the 14 general service schools operated by the Army. These various schools offer courses in subjects embracing practically every known occupation and profession. For those who would like to travel, an opportunity to visit and serve in Uncle Sam's overseas possessions is given. To the man who is already qualified to practice a trade or profession, is extended the opportunity to become more proficient in his chosen vocation and to earn increased pay while doing it. To the young man who would just like to try army life for the benefits offered by an enlistment in the service, is given the chance to enlist at a nearby post, from which he may obtain frequent leaves of absence to visit his home and his friends.

After this brief visit, the local recruiting office will be closed for an undetermined period.

FRUIT, FLOWERS AND GARDEN

Keeping Vegetables

L. B. Nash

Everyone knows that when vegetables are put in the ice box they keep fresh longer than when they are exposed to higher temperatures. Not only do they keep longer, but they retain their flavor and good quality.

Sweet corn is a good example of a vegetable that rapidly loses much of its sweetness and flavor in a few hours unless it is used soon after pulled from the stalk. Peas also lose their sweet, rich flavor when exposed to warm temperatures. The list of vegetables which will not keep very long in ordinary temperatures is a long one.

Some stores are equipped to handle vegetables and to keep them fairly fresh in handling. One of the most common methods is to keep them under refrigeration. In modern and up-to-date markets, the vegetables are often displayed on special racks so constructed that a fine mist of water is sprayed over them. Others display their vegetables in refrigerated show cases.

In the home without modern equipment, many common methods are available to keep vegetables fresh. These are time-tried and familiar to all. For example, to keep a head of lettuce from drying out, it may be wrapped in a wet cloth which helps to retain its freshness.

During the next few years, a great improvement will undoubtedly take place in methods used in marketing vegetables.

New District Office for Social Security Board is in Elmira

Official opening of the Elmira Field Office has been announced by Mrs. Anna M. Rosenberg, New York Regional Director of the Social Security Board. The office is located in the Realty Building, at Lake and East Market streets.

Manager of the Elmira office will be Henry Salmon, who is well known in this part of New York State for his work in insurance fields and as director of CWA projects. The appointee is a graduate of the University of Rochester and served with the 152nd Depot Brigade at Camp Upton, Long Island, during the World War. He was also assistant production manager and officer in charge of personnel for the Bourjois Perfume Company.

When interviewed about the work to be done in his office, Mr. Salmon stated that it would handle all administrative problems under the Federal Old-Age Benefits program in Steuben, Schuyler, Chemung and Tioga Counties.

Pointing out that many employers now require prospective applicants for jobs to have Social Security account numbers in advance, Mr. Salmon stated that persons in this four-county area should send their applications for Social Security account numbers to the Elmira office. "We hope", he said, "to be able to issue account numbers to applicants the same day their completed blanks are received. Individuals may get their application blanks at our office or at the local post offices in their own neighborhood".

"One of the primary duties of the Elmira office", explained the new manager, "will be to aid claimants for benefit payments under the Old-Age Benefits program. Regular monthly benefit payments may not be made until 1942, but lump-sum payments are now being made to qualified workers who have reached the age 65 since the first of the year. Lump-sum death benefit payments are also being made in cases where a worker with established credits toward old-age benefits has died since the first of the year. In these instances, the claims must be made by the estate or close relatives of the deceased".

The Elmira office is the sixteenth field office to be opened by the social security board in New York State. Field offices are opened in important centers in order to bring together the administration of the Act and those affected by its programs. All employers and employees in the working area of the Elmira office are urged to take their security problems to Mr. Salmon and his assistants for guidance.

The Rambler

Some civic minded young ladies are much concerned, and rightly so over the unhealthy and unsanitary habit indulged in by some local people, that of picking garbage cans. They called my attention to this and I have noticed children diving into store and private garbage cans infested with flies.

The first day's registration in Addison High School was 115 which indicates that some students were interested in getting started back to school before the rush of registration began.

Public opinion has changed the speed laws of Pennsylvania. That plus some reconstruction of highways. Orders were issued that the speed limit would be 60 miles per hour beginning last Friday. Considerable criticism throughout nearby states relative to enforcement of Pa's laws has caused a large tourist trade to stay away from Pa.

—o—

The holiday week-end is over and the toll of accidents reported on any holiday week-end is gone with it. Most accidents were blamed on defective machinery, road conditions, the other fellow but never on the driver of the car nor on speed.

—o—

I spent the week-end in central New York and enroute saw three bad accidents in which persons had been seriously injured and one accident in the making. And judging from the looks of the three cars involved in accidents all were due to speed. The distance the cars were from the highway when they came to rest, would indicate this. I'm telling you it made me slow up quite a bit.

Ministers of various denominations have resumed their activities in Addison after their summer vacations mostly spent in the woods. The parishioners have likewise returned from their vacations so that during the coming months there should be a great deal of spiritual and social activities in the churches of Addison and vicinity.

—o—

I saw quite a charming looking and beautifully dressed bride over the week-end. The picture was somewhat spoiled by her chewing gum at a rapid rate.

—o—

It begins to look as tho the milk producers of this vicinity may get together for bargaining purposes and really get some place in their attempt to get a fair price.

—o—

It seemed rather good to see so many young people on the street again Tuesday getting back to school. Their faces and hands were clean and their clothing neat and orderly, compared to their ragamuffin looks during the summer.

—o—

Was in Francis Edwards' the other day and he asked me to sit down. The chair he motioned to was a French period piece and quite ornamental. Well, I sat down and the chair began to play a Brahm's selection. A music box was buried in the cushion of the chair and played a tune when the chair was sat upon.

Haven't heard much local gossip that could be used here in the past few days. However, I did hear that there might be a change in the American hotel. Some of the principals were together last week to talk over the future of the establishment.

Legion members are anticipating the National Convention to be held in New York the latter part of this month. New York is going to give them a great reception. Several from Addison and Steuben County are planning to attend.

—o—

There seems to be more "old home day" celebrations in Steuben County than in any other in the state according to newspaper accounts of activities this year. And the event sure brings back many of the former residents.

—o—

The credit reporting business, reported in another column of this paper, looks to me like a step in the right direction to stop some of the dead beats who chisel local merchants by running big bills they do not intend to pay. Care must be taken in the handling of information tho in the case of such an organization. It will be interesting to watch the development of this organization. for I have heard some say "it is impossible to get the merchants to get together on anything".

That's all.

Life of Steel Increased 120%

New York (IPS) — The higher quality and longer life of modern American industrial products was revealed in an announcement of the American Iron and Steel Institute that the 34,000,000 tons of finished steel products in the United States last year will have an average life of 33½ years.

In 1896, the announcement said, the output of the steel industry had a life of only about 15 years. The increase of 120 per cent in the life of modern steel is due largely to the progress made possible by intensive research programs which were not diminished even by the depression.

During the thirty-year period beginning with 1886 and ending in 1915, the average life of steel in the United States increased about eight years at a nearly constant rate, which was, however, interrupted by the World War. Since the war period, however, substantial advances have been made in both the manufacture and use of steel, which have increased its average length of life by more than ten years.

Constitution Day More Than Just Another Historic Occasion

It is both a paradox and a tribute that in this, the 150th year since the signing of the Constitution, it should be undergoing its most severe test. A paradox because while an officially created government sesquicentennial commission seeks to rekindle a devotion to the Constitution, others seek to prostitute it to their own grasping for power. A tribute because it has stood for 150 years in defiance of all attacks.

One of the most common and insidious attacks has been that the Constitution is being used by a minority of the people to defeat the will of the majority. As a political plea for votes this is clever, for it is a direct appeal to the majority. But, as a matter of fact, protection for the minority is and has been the heart and soul of the Constitution.

Those who wrote the great document had history behind them. And they knew that majorities could always take care of themselves. Because they were the most numerous. The Constitution was intended to prevent this majority from riding rough-shod over their weaker brethren. The Bill of Rights was added to strengthen this protection. The Constitutional Amendment was provided to permit the will of the many to prevail.

Thus, so long as the Constitution stands, there can never be persecution of any religious group or other minority, by the majority. The minority can speak its mind publicly without fear of arrest and imprisonment. Property can not be taken from the humblest or the richest citizen.

September 17 this year will mark the anniversary of something more than just another historic occasion.

Scout Leaders Three-Day Meet On Seneca Lake

Boy Scout leaders of Cayuga, Elmira, Finger Lakes, Seneca, Louis Agassiz Fuertes and Steuben Area Councils will unite for a "Scout Leaders Training Camp" to be held at Camp Seneca, September 17, 18 and 19.

Four specialization courses will be offered which will lead to credit towards the Scoutmaster's Key and Scouter's Training Award. The courses to be offered will be: patrol camping under the direction of Charles Smith, author, lecturer and camper; troop conservation under the direction of Dr. E. Lawrence Palmer, rural extension department of Cornell University; outdoor scoutcraft under the direction of Herbert G. Horton, Steuben Scouter and troop crafts under the direction of O. C. Minor, craft service of Rochester.

The program will get under way at 4 P. M. Friday, September 17 with arrival in camp and bunk assignment and the first sessions in course D will be given. The working day for the Scouters will begin at 7 A. M. and continue through 7:30 P. M.

The Sunday dinner program will include a talk by a member of the regional staff. Each Scouter is asked to bring his own blankets and personal gear. The uniform is desired but not essential. The entire cost will be 40c per meal only. The camp is located on the east shore of Seneca Lake, one mile north of Valois, 13 miles north of Watkins Glen and the camp entrance is on route 414 near Caywood detour.

The Right to Work in "Free" America

Recent activities of John L. Lewis and his Committee of Industrial Organization have developed some queer incidents. At one point a group of girls of the Mennonite Sect, who were prevented by their religion from joining a union, were told that as long as they paid their dues they need not belong to the union.

At Hazelton, Pa., 1,137 of the 1,425 employees of a silk company, where a strike had been forced through violence, presented a petition to the mayor demanding the right to return to work with proper protection. And the United Mine Workers' local chapter, having nothing to do with the silk industry but being the union of John L. Lewis, replied with a full page newspaper ad. One paragraph reads as follows:

"Any member of the United Mine Workers who has a wife, daughter, sister, brother or son, who is a signer of this petition should, and will pay strict attention to this statement, for on it depends his membership in the United Mine Workers of America. This organization will not permit any of its members to continue to hold membership, who allows any member of his family to scab in an open shop, such as the Duplan Silk Mill. Let every mine worker beware, for he will not be allowed to enter any mine or colliery if he permits any member of his family to return to work in the Duplan Silk Mill, unless signed by a legitimate labor organization."

Can this be America in which we live?

According to the National Association of Sheet Music Dealers sales of sheet music increased 20 per cent over the previous year and reached a total of $35,000,000.

BUSINESS MEN LIKE THIS EXPENSE ITEM!

Paying money out is always less pleasant than taking it in. Expense items are headaches for the business man, with one exception.

Money paid for advertising is the single exception. It's the only expenditure a business executive will regard with pleasure, for he knows his money is being invested, not lost.

Advertising is an investment — something paid out today to assure more income tomorrow. Building demand for merchandise thru advertising is just as important as buying goods. Advertising not only creates demand and builds good-will; it makes money for the man who uses it.

THERE'S A REASON . . .

There's a reason why you instinctively turn to the merchant who advertises when you want dependable merchandise at reasonable prices.

Advertising builds his sales, increases his business. The lower margin of profit on each sale is passed on to you.

When you see a local storekeeper's ad in your home town paper, you can be sure he has considered the buyer's interest as well as his own.

BORDEN means MILK the world around

"Borden" is a big name in the milk world.

Yet Borden is only one of 12 principal concerns purchasing milk according to a recent Federal Trade Commission report. These 12 companies combined handle only about 13% of all commercial milk purchased in this country. The total Borden purchases are less than 7% of the nation's commercial milk production.

Borden buys milk in fewer than half of the 43 states, but sells in almost every community in the civilized world. Borden salesmanship of milk and milk products and constant scientific research helps build a bigger market for all dairy farmers.

AHS Sports Program Depends on Class B Meet

William Miller, physical education instructor in the Addison school, has announced that nothing will be done relative to fall athletics until after a meeting of the B League officials and officers to determine what form of athletics will be engaged in by the various schools this fall. There is a growing demand here for touch football. This is a game without the expense of regular football and with many of the dangers of that sport eliminated. Soccer is also being sponsored. Both sports mean that the expense will be only for balls, sneaks and a sweat jerseys to distinguish the team members of the various squads. The meeting of Class B officers is expected to take place next week and after that a definite course of interscholastic and intra-mural sports will be worked out for the local school.

Fish and Game Field Meet Is Postponed

The Addison Fish and Game Club annual field day has been postponed from September 12 to Sunday, October 3. This postponement was made necessary by the list of entries which will be on hand for this annual event. Several sportsmen are planning to attend from other communities. It is planned to make this the largest affair of its kind ever held under the auspices of the local game club. This date will not conflict with the Steuben County meeting planned for this month.

The dedication of the new club house will be one of the highlights of the October 3 meeting here. In addition there will be a large program of trap and skeet shooting, field trials, turkey shoot and a dog show. In addition a program of games is planned.

School Closes Wednesday Owing to Bath Fair

There will be no school Wednesday for the students in the Addison schools. Bath fair officials each year send complimentary tickets for the students in the schools of the county and many take advantage of this opportunity to visit the fair with their people. It has always been customary to close the school one day during the fair, preferably Children's Day. The local school will have articles entered in various fair exhibits.

Helen Towner Will Teach in Bridgeport

Miss Helen Towner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Towner, Front street, has been chosen as member of the faculty of a private school in Bridgeport, Conn. She will assume her new duties September 20. Miss Towner has been teaching on the Goodhue. She is a graduate of Addison High School and of Geneseo Normal School. Eight of the graduates of the Addison High School will seek higher education during the coming weeks and become members of the freshmen classes in various state and collegiate institutions. Wendell Root and David Little will enter the University of Alabama.

Three girls who have long been friends together will enter Geneseo Normal school. These will be the Misses Betty Pepper, Evelyn Sherwood and Bernadine Lyons. Miss Elizabeth Dignen, honor student in the June class, will travel the longest distance from home for her education as she will enter the University of Washington at Seattle, Wash.

Two students will enter the Alfred Agricultural College, these being Robert Stuart and Wilson Oakden. Others are planning to enter higher schools of learning later. Many have gone to work and others will return for post graduate work.

Credit Reporting Group to Meet Monday Night

An outline of some of the objectives and purposes of a credit reporting agency was presented at a meeting of Addison business men held Thursday night in the Grange Hall. The discussion was led by Kenneth Armstrong.

The idea of a credit reporting group is to enable marchants to have an available list at all times of those persons having good credit, those who might be considered a credit risk and those to whom credit should not be given at any time.

It is proposed to have available, at some central point in Addison, a list of all persons who have done any credit business here at any time. No amounts of the sums owed is to be placed on these available lists for the credit marking system will be on the basis of whether a person pays their bills within 60 days, whether they owe many merchants and whether the merchant receiving the inquiry would consider them a good risk.

These are only tentative plans for a second meeting is to be held Monday night at 7:30 o'clock in the Grange Hall to which all merchants in Addison are invited. Many communities and cities have such agencies for the protection of merchants. It was felt at Tuesday's meeting that it would pay the merchants to spend three or four dollars to belong to such an organization than to lose much larger sums by granting credit when it is hopeless to collect. With a clearing house for information many people now receiving credit in several places and who have no intentions of paying or no intentions of paying soon, will be forced to make payments. These conditions exist in many cases here where long term credit has been extended by several merchants to one individual. Emergency cases will be granted emergency measures.

Carrie B. Calkins No. 1 Hit Production in Top of Oriskany

previously considered near the axis of the field. This unexpected development points to the probability the structure is much wider to the south of Woodhull than had been generally believed, and holders of leases as well as land owners in the direction of Austinburg are optimistic about the prospects of a large producing area.

C. A. Goble, operator on the Hattie Hand, has run into trouble this week when a string of tools was dropped into the bottom of the hole. The accident came when the rope socket pulled off the wire line. Drillers decided to put a whipsocket in the well above the tools and drill around them rather than attempt to fish them out. This well should have reached the sand the last of this week if trouble had not been encountered.

Another well which is nearly down to the sand is the Moyer, drilled by Dick Atwater. This hole was down to 3,750 Tuesday afternoon, and should be ready to case today or tomorrow. It will probably be drilled in the first of the week. The Moyer is owned by Hanley and Bird. Goble is reported down to 1,700 in Sylvania's Tuttle well, while Stroupe has spudded in the Towsley at the far western edge of the field.

Altogether there are now 11 rigs either drilling or moving to new locations in the rapidly growing Woodhull field which now promises to be one of the really big Oriskany gas production structures. The Cunningham Gas Company moved a new rig in on the Jabe Johnson farm last week and will be ready to spud their well in in a few days. Pat Fitzstevens is rigging up on the Hathaway farm at the new location Williamsport Gas and Oil Co. has made near the Woodhull rocks. Acme Drilling Company has finished rigging up on the Henry Tubbs farm and is ready to spud the well in this week. Joe Flanagan has torn down his rig which drilled the Ackerman and is moving it to a new location southwest of the Charles Groves farm. Stroupe is tearing his rig down on the Carrie B. Calkins and moving to the Edgar Ackerman farm for another well.

It was reported this week that North Penn has lately been taking ten million feet of gas a day out of the Herrington well.

Orr Hill Ladies To Sponsor Chicken Supper

Ladies of the Orr Hill Methodist Church will sponsor and prepare a chicken supper to be served Tuesday night, September 21 at the farm home of Mr. and Mrs. Beldon Ackerson. This farm is located one and one-half miles from Addison. Serving will begin at 6 o'clock and continue until all are cared for. This will be the first in a series of such affairs sponsored by the women to raise funds for the church.

Addison CCC Camp Being Demolished

The work of demolishing the Addison Civilian Conservation Camp is continuing slowly under the direction of army officers. The corps members engaged in the work are trying to salvage as much of the construction material as possible. It is hoped that 80 per cent of the cost of the camp can be taken from the salvage material including plumbing and heating materials, electric wiring and fixtures, hardware and woodwork. The young men tearing down the camp are mostly from the metropolitan area. None of them were located at this camp as enrollees.

We admire anyone who can use fine words if they are not beyond our comprehension.
